DETAILED ACTION

Priority

1. Acknowledgment is made of applicant's claim for foreign priority under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d). The certified copy has been filed in parent Application No.

09/779,458, filed on 02/09/01. Specification

2. The title of the invention is not descriptive. A new title is required that is clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

5. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Matsumoto et al., (Matsumoto), USPAT 6,078,375 in view of Sunohara et al., (Sunohara), USPAT 5,596,435.

6. Matsumoto shows in Fig. 8 and related disclosures, a liquid crystal display device comprising a pair of substrates ((101, 201), at least one of the substrates being transparent; a liquid crystal layer (300) interposed between the pair of substrates; and pixel electrodes (107) and common electrodes (103) and active elements arranged on the TFT substrate, liquid crystal of the liquid crystal layer being controlled to perform display by applying a voltage between the pixel electrode and the common electrode, wherein alignment layers (130, 230) is formed on a surface in contact with the liquid crystal layer of each of the pair of substrates.

Matsumoto differs from the claimed invention because they do not explicitly disclose that the alignment layer is made of an organic polymer selected from the group consisting of polyamic acid group polymers and polyimide ester group polymers having a relative imidization ratio of above 60%.

Sunohara discloses a liquid crystal display including alignment layers wherein the alignment layers are made of organic polymer selected from the group consisting of polyamic acid group polymers and polyimide ester group polymers having a relative imidization ratio above 90% (abstract) (which is above 60%). Sunohara also discloses that such alignment layers provide a display that is free from fault in display performance (col. 2, lines 33-35).

Sunohara is evidence that ordinary workers in the art of liquid crystal would find a reason, suggestion or motivation to use alignment layers that is made of an organic polymer selected from the group consisting of polyamic acid group polymers and polyimide ester group polymers having a relative imidization ratio of above 60%.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to modify the display of Matsumoto such that the alignment layers are made of an organic polymer selected from the group consisting of polyamic acid group polymers and polyimide ester group polymers having a relative imidization ratio of above 70%, so that a display that is free from fault in display performance is obtained.

Accordingly, claim 1 would have been obvious.

Conclusion

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
